Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release

July 21, 1982

President Reagan today approved a Directive calling for a policy of differentiation toward the East European countries belonging to the Warsaw Pact. Countries which either demonstrate relative independence from the Soviet Union in the conduct of foreign policy or are more responsive to the rights and needs of their people will receive preferential treatment from the United States in bilateral economic, political, and cultural relations. The Presidential Directive reconfirms and elaborates on a policy which the United States Government has had in effect under preceding Administrations.
